Died in the Service of the Howard Assoclation-Reports from Societies-Interesting Incidents-The Condition of the Sick and Convalescent.

The fever is rapidly abating, and we may ow look forward with hope, born of certainty, that two weeks more will find us, if not entirely free of it, so near to that long wished for condition as to enable us to reathe freer than we have since the first of August last. The new cases reported yesterlay were only eighty-five, figures that prove how weak is the hold the plague has upon is compared with a week a ago. The deaths, hough reported forty-nine, will not militate gainst this when it is understood that of that number thirty-four only were of yesterlay, the remainder being of the twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh. The daily average of eaths since the twenty-fifth has fallen from fifty-three, at which it stood for the preceding even days, to forty, a decline, that all things onsidered, is very rapid. Within the next even days it ought to decline below thirty, and after that the falling off should be still

C. Gilmore, C. H. Fortes. The Senatobia Tidal Wave, of the twenty-sixth, corrects us as follows: "The Memphis Appeal of the twenty-sixth instant copies from the Louisville Courier-Journal of the twenty-first a list of places and number of deaths by yellow-fever. In this list our town is represented as having had seven of such deaths. This is entirely a mistake. Not a single case of yellow-fever has ever been been in our town; but two cases came from Grenada, about the twentieth of August, and went into quarantine outside of town, where one of them died and the other recovered. Besides these, not a case has been in our county, unless Mrs. Parker, who came from Grenada, to her sister's, four miles south of this place, had it; but it is doubtful. God has blessed us so far, and we hope the season will soon be unfavorable to the spreading of yellow-fever." -The Senatobia Tidal Ware, of the twen--" Poor Old Nick!" That was the spon-

DEAR MADAM—With the desire of thoroughly investigating the subject of the efficacy of the watery extract of celery, which you propose as a remedy for yellow-fever, I send to your rooms Dr. Bougassi, my auxiliary, to request you to write a full statement of the effects you attribute to the extract of celery, put up at New York by Carl Bocking, chemist, No. 12 Cedar street, and to tender this document to Dr. Bougarel. I am, very respectfully,

r. Gaudon D'Bultn, Peabody Hotel: Dr. Gaudon D'Hulin, Peabody Hotel:

DRAR SIR—The aqua celeria can be applied in cases of yellow fever in all stages. It is most efficacio uswhen given at the appearance of the first symptoms of the fever, as it then cools the blood, quiets the nerves, and brings on a gentle perspiration; if the kidneys refuse to act it works like a charm, and in the convalescent stage it is an excellent tonic. At the first stage of the fever one table spoonful ought to be administered every five minutes until the patient is quieted and put in a state of agreeable perspiration. Later, if the kidneys alone are in question, one tablespoonful four times a day is necessary. In the case of convalescents one tablespoonful three to five times a day, according to circumstances, ought to be prescribed. Very respectfully, yours.

Yellow-Fever, Carbolic Acid and Preventions. ERITORS APPEAL-The following extracts from a private letter written by Dr. F. J. B. Rohmer, of Spring Hill college, Alabama, a physician of eminent scientific attainments. may be interesting, and perhaps instructive EXTRACTS:

to many of your readers.

EXTRACTS:

The mortality following in the wake of yellow-fever this season is appalling. In New Orleans it is fully one-third of those taken sick, and in Memphis it appears even greater. Never before, to my recollection, was such frightful havoc witnessed. Judging from a distance, and taking into consideration the proportionally large number of deaths among children, I sometimes fancy that the disinfectants employed are chargeable with this enormous fatality. What is used as carbolic acid is, in fact, no carbolic acid at all, but is simply the residum left after the carbolic acid has been distilled. According to authorities, this cheap stuff contains but from five to eight per cent. of acid, the rest being a mixture of various empyreumatic oils, possessing no other properties, save that off stiffing poor patients who are made to breathe them, and producing fatal congestions by preventing the oxygenation of the blood. Again, in an epidemic of yellow-fever there exist also at the same time malarial fevers of a permicious term (and this must hold good in Memphis particularly), which, unless early recognized, must contribute to swell the death list, as they require different modes of treatment.

But the duty of the physician is to prevent, as well as to cure. In fact, I think prevention is the more practicable. Why not, then, seek to guard the system from taking the fever, not simply by common hygienic measures, but by disinfecting the body? Yellow-fever is a zymotic disease. As such, it recognizes a living germ as the cause of its development. Why not attempt to destroy this germ before it has time to generate diseased action?

Inclosed, I send you a prescription which I have employed successfully in other zymotic infectious diseases. Try it; it may perchance be of benefit during the present pestilence:

Your friend, F. J. B. ROHMER, M. D. The following is the prescription referred to in the Arthur F. Reed, druggist, of St. Louis, eldest son of Irvin Reed, is now in Memphis, rendering valuable assistance in caring for yellow-fever sufferers under the direction of the Howard association of that place. Mr. Reed was a druggist in New Orleans six years, during which time there were several vistations from yellow-fever, consequently understands the nature of the disease and its proper treatment. When the call for help was made by the Howard association of Memphis, he felt it his duty to leave his business and home and g.ve the sufferers the benefit of his experience. His father received a postal card from him last evening, announcing that he was having marked success in his treatment of the disease. He says the newspapers convey but a slight idea of the suffering and distress prevailing in Memphis. "Death" literally "rides on every passing breeze."
